

Using Structured Text

Structured Text can be used on our website to format text in a web page without using HTML in documents and wiki pages.

Style	Example: what you type	Example: how it will look on the published web page	Notes plain text	This is just the plain text which forms the body of my page. Skip a line to start a new paragraph.	This is just the plain text which forms the body of my page. Skip a line to start a new paragraph.	Always skip a line to start a new paragraph. Beware the dangers of indentation (see "headers" below) italic	Bon jour!	Bon jour! bold	Bold catches the eye.	Bold catches the eye.
bulleted list	* the first thing * the second thing	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● the first thing ● the second thing numbered list	1 the first thing 2 the second thing 1 the third thing (sic)	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. the first thing 2. the second thing 3. the third thing 	It will automatically put the numbers in order, even if you don't.
headers (dangerous indentation)	This is a Section Header This is a paragraph that follows the header.	This is a Section Header This is a paragraph that follows the header.	This one will mess you up more than it helps you. If you don't indent one paragraph, then indent the next one, it thinks you are trying to make a header and body paragraph.
links	Find a picture at "Google": http://images.google.com	Find a picture at Google	Clicking on Google will take the reader to http://images.google.com .
link to a page in the same folder	Be sure to check out the "Essay Rubric": essay_rubric	Be sure to check out the Essay Rubric	Clicking on Essay Rubric will take the reader to a document called essay_rubric in the same folder (if it exists).
image	"Wedding": img:wedding		A picture called "wedding" should be in the same folder as the page you're making.

Assembled by Tom Hoffman [hoffman@as220.org]
For more details on Structured Text, see:
<http://www.zope.org/Members/millejoh/structuredText>

